from beginning to the end of the day ended with highlights on universal human values. The second day of session also remained fruitful for all 45 participants (Poornima-26, other colleges-19) widening the horizons of their knowledge.

Day 3: 14 July, 2018 the statement “Understanding means living” drew the attention of the participants at FDP organized at Poornima College of Engineering and made them know of human values. Mr. Suresh Patel (Prabodhak, HVE) had a session on implementation of information in reality. As, the knowledge of something is not enough for the universal happiness. He stated that there is a gap between the information and implementation of the same in real life. He cited certain examples to make the gathering understand this. As per his thoughts, it is our belief and acceptance of worldly things that we behave in a particular way without judging. It is needed to come out of narrow mindedness for being a better individual. But it is also true that what we accept may not be accepted to others. Thus, Mr. Suresh Patel highlighted many objectives in his sessions, which he took on July 14, 2018. The example of the President of Bhutan and his concern for environment and other examples made the participants understand the value of environment and made the session interesting. He further enlightened the horizons of the participants with his views on universal attitude and universal acceptance which is not evident due to the ignorance of actual meaning in human life. The significance of happiness, family, environment etc. was the core of the session organized on third day of the FDP with the conclusion that life of comforts does not give happiness; it is the relationship with one another which keeps us happy. The FDP included discussion and interaction among the participants and ended with understanding of universal human values.

Day 4: 16 July, 2018 the fourth day of the FDP organized at PCE had been interesting and interactive for participants who got to know that the ruling over others is not the arrangement and if there is ruling, there is no arrangement. The session taken by Mr. Suresh Patel began with the recap of previous session. He stated that human love ensures the arrangement and it is needed to stop ruling others for strong relations with others. Later, the participants were served with refreshment at 10.30 A.M. Thereafter, an understanding of happiness and the means to get the same was made by Prabodhak, HVE. He emphasized on implementation of information in real sense. He illustrated through various examples related to great personalities. Then, there occurred a lunch break followed by a fruitful discussion on views discussed in the earlier session. The discussion included the essential points of human values and the participants started realising a positive sign of change in them. The fourth day of FDP ended with knowledge of objective life, its need for human survival and understanding of universal human values.

Day 5: 17 July, 2018 The fifth day of the FDP organized at PCE enlightened the participants of knowledge of the participants who witnessed the presence of Mr. Suresh Patel in Universal Human Values. The Prabodhak, HVE stated his views with examples from daily life wherein we don't pay heed to small and significant things. The session emphasized the nature and its four phases which have a direct connection with human life. Human beings keep taking from nature but do not give anything in return. This taking means exploitation and excess of the resources. This results into an inevitable loss to human life for which no remedy is enough once it is too late. It is needed that one should go beyond the limitations of physicality in order to enjoy the happiness. The human beings have no bound of place and time as the other creatures have. Therefore, there are more opportunities to them. Later, the session was followed by a lunch break and a fruitful discussion among participants. The discussion at FDP had essential points of human values which made participants know of the universal human values and ended with a focus on the infinity of hope, desire and willingness. Thus, the fourth day highlighted the relevance of nature and importance of its objects for human beings.

Day 6: 18 July, 2018 the sixth day of the FDP organized at PCE included the session on human values which is needed for human survival. One cannot deny that happiness is must for all of us. Mr. Suresh Patel delivered his views through the help of audio- video displays e.g. short movies and videos for the same. The session focused on human nature and tendency which needs to be changed for a better life. The importance of environment was also at the core of his deliberations. The Prabodhak, HVE emphasized that the implementation of information in practical way should be followed by human beings, so that life on earth may be easy going with full of humanity. Later, the session was followed by a lunch break and a result-oriented discussion among participants. The discussion comprised of essential points on human values. The more, the FDP is coming close to end, the more, the understanding of participants is getting clear, giving them a chance to explore themselves. The session ended with opening of new arenas of knowledge for every participant.
